GLO TO SLEEP

The Glo to Sleep is a sleep therapy mask that claims to help you sleep better by focusing the mind on relaxation and sleep.

The device resembles a lightweight sleep mask and works by utilizing specially designed lights inside the mask called Points of Glo, to slow brain activity, achieve an alpha wave brain state and engage deep, natural and restorative sleep.

It also blocks external light from interfering with the effect of the Glo to Sleep, while recessed eye pieces allow the eyes to blink normally. It's wireless and no batteries required. Just expose it to any light source (sun, light bulb, etc) for about 30 seconds to become activated. It retails for about $40.

MEDICAL EMERGENCY BRACELETS

Nearly 50 years ago, the American Medical Association created a universal symbol that would be able to speak for people in emergency situations when they couldn't. Today, the red insignia symbol is universal among Emergency Medical Technicians and other first responders and continues to save millions of lives as it reduces unnecessary hospital admissions and misdiagnosis.

Medical ID Marketplace, a Hope Paige Company, has managed to combine fashion with practicality to create a stylish, informational bracelet that can save lives by making medical personnel aware that the bearer has certain life-threatening allergies.

From kids and men's bracelets to Tiffany-inspired and Pandora styles, each bracelet can be customized with an engraving on the back to alert EMTs of a problem.

The bracelets retail for about $25. For more information visit the web site at www.medicalIDmarketplace.com
